Private gym closes doors -- blaming City, in part

■ New city Rec Center competed with gym, but also offered special partnership

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

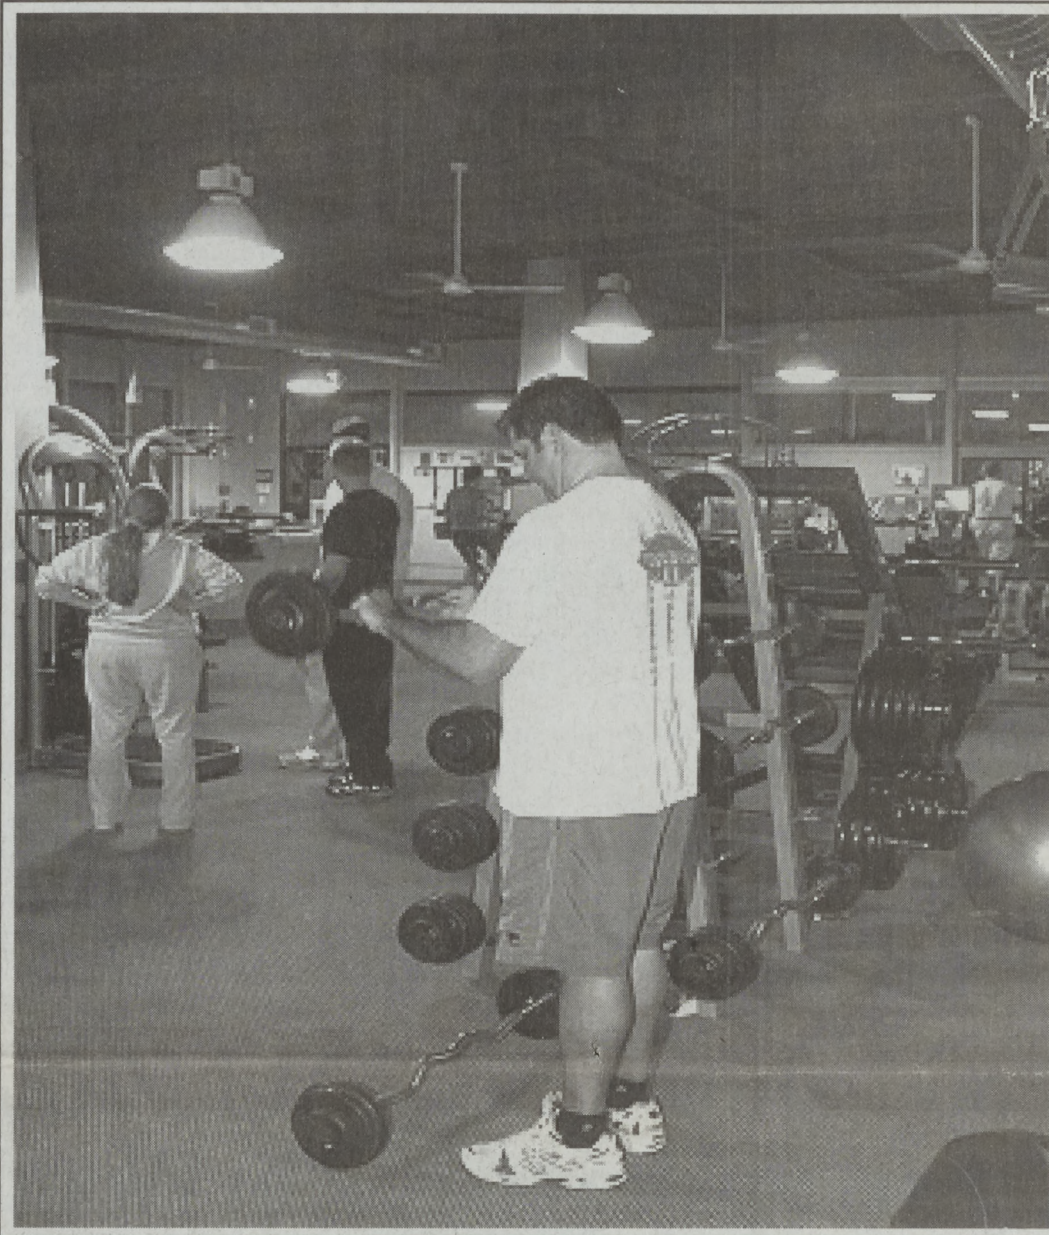

A West Sacramento business that found itself in the unusual position of having to compete with a city-owned facility closed its doors at the end of July.

Said a note on the website for 15th Street Fitness:

"The economy, accompanied by the city of West Sacramento opening a competitive fitness facility inside the (West Sacramento) recreation center, have been too much to overcome. Over the past 9 months, we have worked with 3 groups and had 2 interested buyers."

But "for the same reasons we are struggling," the potential buyers or new partners all pulled out, said the website. So the gym closed on July 31.

In 2009, the facility at 109 15th Street went to the City of West Sacramento for help, believing that the busy new city Recreation Center next to River City High School was taking away business. The two sides worked out a special deal that gave members of the private gym reduced rates for an add-on that included use of Rec Center facilities such as the pool.

The package was intended to help make membership at 15th Street Fitness more attractive.

But that deal was not enough to keep the private gym afloat.

A few years ago, its owners had bought the site, which included an old building that for decades had been home to a neighborhood market. They spent hundreds of thousands renovating the structure.

Then the city built the Recreation Center -- a decision some people feel was wrong.

Tom Farley, a 15th Street Fitness patron, told the News-Ledger:

"I think it was unfair. I can understand a community developing a pool. I think that's pretty common. But I think it is unfair to compete with a private gym when you can get taxpayers to pay for the equipment and building."

Farley received a letter from gym CEO Steve Buchanan, offering members the choice of quitting their membership or transferring it and getting a free month at an affiliated gym in Davis. That option is "certainly less convenient," said Farley.

"I'll probably continue there," he added. "I have not gone to the Rec Center because from what I understand, it's pretty crowded, and I'm not sure if I want to support them with what's happened."

Another patron of 15th Street was Joe Goeden, retired city manager. Goeden declined to discuss the public policy issue of the city building a competing recreation center, but he explained why he liked 15th Street Fitness:

"I liked the equipment," said Goeden. "It was the first thing like it in West Sacramento. What I really liked about it was that it wasn't all that crowded, at least during the times of day I went there. I thought it was good of the city to try to work something out and be of assistance to them."

The News-Ledger tried to contact Buchanan and Tammy Hengel, who were co-owners of 15th Street Fitness as of 2009 (although the ownership structure may have changed). Phone calls and an email haven't yet been returned.

West Sacramento City Councilman Bill Kristoff told the News-Ledger he is still supportive of the council's decision to build the $16 million Recreation Center, which includes a swimming pool, climbing wall, exercise equipment and exercise classrooms.

"So many people use the gym and facility out at our new high school," said Kristoff. "I don't think that's the reason 15th Street Fitness failed, though. I think (building the Rec Center) was a good move on our part. I think it's worthwhile."

City council agrees to 'pay to play' for redevelopment agency -- but under protest

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

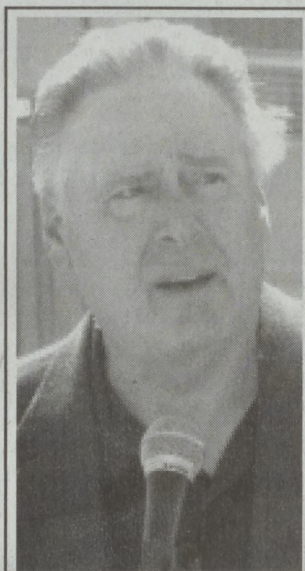

West Sacramento's city council has decided to "pay to play" to keep its redevelopment agency in business -- or at least to try to come up with the money to play.

Part of California's budget overhaul is a plan to eliminate local redevelopment agencies unless local governments are willing to pay a fee to the state. In West Sacramento's case, there would be an initial $6.5 million due, followed by $1.5 annually.

Mayor Christopher Cabaldon and Mayor pro tem Bill Kristoff have told the News-Ledger that the steep down payment may or may not be waivable -- and if can't be waived, the city can't afford it.

"I've looked over every part of the budget possible to find a way to come up with that, and haven't found it," said Kristoff yesterday.

But the city council decided last week to try to make the state payment "under protest," while trying to work with the state to reduce the fees, and supporting efforts behind the scenes to challenge the new laws entirely. A lot of local governments are looking to change state legislators' minds or even to challenge the "pay to play" demand as unconstitutional.

Redevelopment agencies are often used for economic development. They often use the promise of future property values to help finance bonds that pay for big-ticket work that paves the way for new development. Governor Jerry Brown has said he supports that goal, but the state can't afford to miss out on revenue that is redirected by local redevelopment agencies.

Kristoff told the News-Ledger that the city is trying to get that $6.5 million initial payment brought way down.

"That is the nut we have to meet, so far," he said. "We are trying to have that adjusted so we can stay viable and continue to do the economic development that redevelopment agencies do."

The city gives its redevelopment agency for big credit on things like building affordable housing, cleaning up West Capitol, and enabling development on the riverfront.

Kristoff says one of the best examples of its use locally has been in helping to build the Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge at Lake Washington Boulevard. The bridge created a second way in and out of Southport over the barge canal, augmenting the bridge on Jefferson.

"Look what that did for the Southport community and what it did for our schools and economic development," he commented. "You would not have the houses there, or the retail we have out there, because you wouldn't have the ingresses and egresses you need. That put

Clerk stabbed, injured in convenience store crime

A convenience store clerk was stabbed during a robbery just after midnight on August 3 at an AM/PM near Harbor Boulevard and Evergreen Avenue.

West Sacramento police say the suspect struggled with the clerk before stabbing him three times, taking the cash register (or part of it) and fleeing in a dark sedan. The clerk is expected to recover.

The suspect is described as a 6'0" tall black male, age 20 to 30, weighing about 200 pounds. He was wearing a white and blue striped short sleeve shirt, blue pants and a black beanie with a short brim.

A security camera has video footage of the suspect, and police have released a still photo from it. The photo quality is not good, but it can be seen at the News-Ledger's Facebook site, where it was posted Aug. 3.

As of Monday, the suspect had not been identified, said Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Anyone with information about the suspect is asked to call 617-4915 or 375-6474.

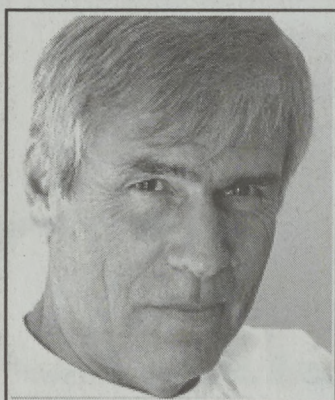

Do you ever just need a good 'think'?

Each year during the month of August, as a kind of birthday present to myself, I try to spend at least one full day completely alone with my thoughts on the most deserted stretch of Pacific Ocean beach I can find. I go for long walks, fill my lungs with as much of that wonderful sea air as possible, and reflect on what a great life I've had. And when the sun starts going down, I sprawl out on the still warm sand, leisurely watch the timeless waves come and go, and remind myself that my little problems aren't really all that important in the overall scheme of things.

I actually got the idea of making time for a good think now and then from the old Andy Griffith television show. There was a character on that program named Gomer Pyle, and he was the town's happy-go-lucky mechanic. But somewhere along the line the people who were in charge of such things decided to give Gomer his own T.V. show with him playing a young Marine who was always getting into trouble with the drill sergeant who was in charge of trying to turn clueless but good-natured Gomer into a decent soldier.

In one of the episodes, the sergeant got so frustrated with Gomer's inability to concentrate on the tasks at hand that he finally just puts a big milk pail over Gomer's head and tells him to keep it on until he can get his thoughts together. And after a few hours of standing around all alone with that bucket on his head, Gomer has an epiphany.

"You know what, Sergeant Carter? A person really can have himself a good think under here!"

So, there I was last Saturday evening, on what I thought was a deserted little stretch of Portuguese Beach, just north of Bodega Bay, without a bucket to put on my head yet still determined to have myself a really good think. But with the sun almost ready to start disappearing into the vastness of the Pacific Ocean, a man and a woman a few years younger than me suddenly began stretching out a big blanket on the sand right next to me. Well, they weren't exactly right next me, but close enough that sooner or later we were going to have to acknowledge each other's presence. And as I suspected, it turned out to be sooner.

"I'm Eddie, and this is my wife Kelly," said the much-too friendly man seated much too close to me as I politely returned both of their smiles. "And what brings you out here on this beautiful night?"

Since I didn't want to be rude and tell him I was trying to be alone with my own thoughts, I just said, "Oh, admiring the sunset mostly."

"Us, too!" said Kelly enthusiastically.

"But do you really want to know why we're here?" Eddie asked me, not waiting for an answer. "We're here to get away from Texas!"

"Really?" I asked, knowing that I had now opened up the door to a full-blown conversation.

"That's right," said Eddie. "We're from Dallas, and we just couldn't take another single day of all that god-awful Texas heat and humidity. Do you know that it's been over 100 degrees back home for the past 40 days? And when we finally said enough was enough and got on a plane to San Francisco, they were forecasting at least two more weeks of the same. That's going to make it almost two straight months of getting up in the morning with the temperature already in the 90s, and the wife and I figured we just had to get out of there before it drove us both completely crazy!"

"So we asked ourselves where could we go to cool down," said Kelly, continuing her husband's train of thought as longtime married couples often do, "and according to the weather channel, about the only place in the whole country having decent weather this summer is California, so here we are."

"We rented ourselves a car in San Francisco," explained Eddie, "and we've been driving up and down your beautiful coastline for the past few days and enjoying every single minute of it!"

"And we're having so much fun," added Kelly, "that we've decided we're not going home until the heat wave is completely over."

"We especially love your giant redwood trees!" said Eddie. "It's like being in church without the hypocrites."

"And we're going to try and get over to Lake Tahoe before we leave," said Kelly. "We hear it's one of the most beautiful places on earth."

"Oh," added Eddie, "and every meal we had while we were in San Francisco was incred-

'We're from Dallas, and we just couldn't take another single day of all that god-awful Texas heat and humidity. Do you know that it's been over 100 degrees back home for the past 40 days? And when we finally said enough was enough and got on a plane to San Francisco.'

ible! Plus we went to a Giants baseball game and that has to be the most beautiful baseball park in the whole country!"

Anyway, by the time Eddie and Kelly had finished telling me — in great detail — about how wonderful Northern California is, the sun had gone down and I had actually started to like them. They told me all about what was really keeping them in Texas — their beloved kids and grandkids — and I could easily see by the way they finished each other's sentences and never stopped holding hands that they belonged to that most endangered species of all, a happily married couple. And later that night, on my drive back to West Sacramento, it dawned on me that although I had gone to the ocean to get away from "the continuous music, chatter, and companionship to which we do not even listen," I had stumbled upon what Anne Morrow Lindbergh once called the most important thing in life, "a good relationship, where the partners do not need to hold on tightly, because they move confidently in the same pattern, intricate but gay and swift and free, like a country dance of Mozart's."

Court's budget cuts

(The following statement is by the presiding judge of Yolo Superior Court, and was issued in a press release)

In Yolo we anticipated that this rainy day would come. It's now here. Because of prudent and conservative planning over the past three years, we intend to keep open all departments of this Court — criminal, civil, juvenile, family, small claims, unlawful detainer, and traffic. We will, however, continue to work lean so this year we will reduce the hours of our public counters and phone service, and we will close a satellite facility. Further reductions in future years will seriously challenge us. More state-imposed cuts to our budget will diminish our resources and ability to provide justice to the citizens of this County.

Delays & detours on Industrial Blvd.

From the City of West Sacramento

Traffic in the vicinity of the Port of West Sacramento will face a temporary detour and significant delays from Aug. 15 to Aug. 20, in conjunction with a major railroad crossing construction project. A segment of Industrial Boulevard between Harbor Boulevard east to Terminal Street will be closed in both directions that week as Union Pacific Railroad completes construction of improvements to railroad crossings. The crossing project began July 11 and the Industrial Boulevard segment is expected to complete the safety improvements by Saturday, Aug. 20.

The City of West Sacramento, which has been assisting Union Pacific in the planning of the road closures required by the railroad repairs, expects delays in the area of Harbor Boulevard and Terminal Street especially during morning and afternoon hours. Detour signs will be used to help guide traffic through the area. West Sacramento residents are advised to avoid Industrial Boulevard altogether, if possible, to reduce vehicle traffic in the area during the temporary closure.

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF WEST SACRAMENTO DETERMINING IT WILL COMPLY WITH THE VOLUNTARY ALTERNATIVE REDEVELOPMENT PROGRAM PURSUANT TO PART 1.9 OF DIVISION 24 OF THE CALIFORNIA HEALTH AND SAFETY CODE IN ORDER TO PERMIT THE CONTINUED EXISTENCE AND OPERATION OF THE REDEVELOPMENT AGENCY OF THE CITY OF WEST SACRAMENTO

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of West Sacramento ("City") approved and adopted the Redevelopment Plan for the West Sacramento Redevelopment Project ("Redevelopment Plan") covering certain properties within the City (the "Project Area"); and

WHEREAS, the Redevelopment Agency of the City of West Sacramento ("Agency") is engaged in activities to execute and implement the Redevelopment Plan pursuant to the provisions of the California Community Redevelopment Law (Health and Safety Code § 33000, et seq.) ("CRL"); and

WHEREAS, since adoption of the Redevelopment Plan, the Agency has undertaken redevelopment projects in the Project Area to eliminate blight, to improve public facilities and infrastructure, to renovate and construct affordable housing, and to enter into partnerships with private industries to create jobs and expand the local economy; and

WHEREAS, over the next few years, the Agency hopes to implement a variety of redevelopment projects and programs to continue to eliminate and prevent blight, stimulate and expand the Project Area's economic growth, create and develop local job opportunities and alleviate deficiencies in public infrastructure, to name a few; and

WHEREAS, as part of the 2011-12 State budget bill, the California Legislature has recently enacted and the Governor has signed, companion bills ABX1 26 and ABX1 27, requiring that each redevelopment agency be dissolved unless the community that created it enacts an ordinance committing it to making certain payments; and

WHEREAS, specifically, ABX1 26 prohibits agencies from taking numerous actions, effective immediately and purportedly retroactively, and additionally provides that agencies are deemed to be dissolved as of October 1, 2011; and

WHEREAS, ABX1 27 provides that a community may participate in an "Alternative Voluntary Redevelopment Program," in order to enable a redevelopment agency within that community to remain in existence and carry out the provisions of the CRL, by enacting an ordinance agreeing to comply with Part 1.9 of Division 24 of the Health and Safety Code; and

WHEREAS, the Alternative Voluntary Redevelopment Program requires that the community agree by ordinance to remit specified annual amounts to the county auditor-controller; and

WHEREAS, under the threat of dissolution pursuant to ABX1 26, and upon the contingencies and reservations set forth herein, the City shall make the Fiscal Year 2011-2012 community remittance, currently estimated to be Six Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($6,500,000), as well as the subsequent annual community remittances as set forth in the CRL; and

WHEREAS, the City reserves the right to appeal the California Director of Finance's determination of the Fiscal Year 2011-12 community remittance, as provided in Health and Safety Code Section 34194; and

WHEREAS, City understands and believes that an action challenging the constitutionality of ABX1 26 and ABX1 27 will be filed on behalf of cities, counties and redevelopment agencies; and

WHEREAS, while the City currently intends to make these community remittances, they shall be made under protest and without prejudice to the City's right to recover such amounts and interest thereon, to the extent there is a final determination that ABX1 26 and ABX1 27 are unconstitutional; and

WHEREAS, the City reserves the right, regardless of any community remittance made pursuant to this Ordinance, to challenge the legality of ABX1 26 and ABX1 27; and

WHEREAS, to the extent a court of competent jurisdiction

enjoins, restrains, or grants a stay on the effectiveness of the Alternative Voluntary Redevelopment Program's payment obligation of ABX1 26 and ABX1 27, the City shall not be obligated to make any community remittance for the duration of such injunction, restraint, or stay; and

WHEREAS, all other legal prerequisites to the adoption of this Ordinance have occurred.

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF WEST SACRAMENTO DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. Recitals. The Recitals set forth above are true and correct and incorporated herein by reference.

Section 2. Participation in the Alternative Voluntary Redevelopment Program. In accordance with Health and Safety Code Section 34193, and based on the Recitals set forth above, the City Council hereby determines that the City shall comply with the provisions of Part 1.9 of Division 24 of the Health and Safety Code, as enacted by ABX1 27.

Section 3. Payment Under Protest. Except as set forth in Section 4, below, the City Council hereby determines that the City shall make the community remittances set forth in Health and Safety Code section 34194 et seq.

Section 4. Effect of Stay or Determination of Invalidity. City shall not make any community remittance in the event a court of competent jurisdiction either grants a stay on the enforcement of ABX1 26 and ABX1 27 or determines that ABX1 26 and ABX1 27 are unconstitutional and therefore invalid, and all appeals therefrom are exhausted or unsuccessful, or time for filing an appeal therefrom has lapsed. Any community remittance shall be made under protest and without prejudice to the City's right to recover such amount and interest thereon in the event that there is a final determination that ABX1 26 and ABX1 27 are unconstitutional. If there is a final determination that ABX1 26 and ABX1 27 are invalid, this Ordinance shall be deemed to be null and void and of no further force or effect.

Section 5. Implementation. The City Council hereby authorizes and directs the City Manager to take any action and execute any documents necessary to implement this Ordinance, including but not limited to notifying the Yolo County Auditor-Controller, the Controller of the State of California, and the California Department of Finance of the adoption of this Ordinance and the City's agreement to comply with the provisions of Part 1.9 of Division 24 of the Health and Safety Code, as set forth in ABX1 27.

Section 6. Additional Understandings and Intent. It is the understanding and intent of the City Council that, once the Agency is again authorized to enter into agreements under the CRL, the City will enter into an agreement with the Agency as authorized pursuant to Section 34194.2, whereby the Agency will transfer annual portions of its tax increment to the City in amounts not to exceed the annual community remittance payments to enable the City, directly or indirectly, to make the annual remittance payments. The City Council does not intend, by enactment of this Ordinance, to pledge any of its general fund revenues or assets to make the remittance payments.

Section 7. CEQA. The City Council finds, under Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations, Section 15378(b)(4), that this Ordinance is exempt from the requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act ("CEQA") in that it is not a "project," but instead consists of the creation and continuation of a governmental funding mechanism for potential future projects and programs, and does not commit funds to any specific project or program. The City Council, therefore, directs that a Notice of Exemption be filed with the County Clerk of the County of Yolo in accordance with CEQA Guidelines.

Section 8. Custodian of Records. The documents and materials that constitute the record of proceedings on which these findings are based are located at the City Clerk's office located at 1110 West Capitol Avenue, West Sacramento, CA 95691. The custodian for these records is Krissy Rankin, City Clerk.

Section 9. Severability. If any provision of this Ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of this Ordinance which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this Ordinance are severable. The City Council hereby declares that it would have adopted this Ordinance irrespective of the invalidity of any particular portion thereof.

Section 10. Certification; Publication. The City Clerk shall certify to the adoption of this Ordinance and cause it, or a summary of it, to be published once within 15 days of adoption in a newspaper of general circulation printed and published within the City of West Sacramento, and shall post a certified copy of this Ordinance, including the vote for and against the same, in the Office of the City Clerk in accordance with Government Code § 36933.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Jane Eyre" (PG-13) -- A young woman in Victorian England, plain in appearance, leaves a troubled past behind and finds herself in the employ of a charming and complicated man. It's another in a long series of adaptations of Charlotte Bronte's novel, and this one stands out among the rest. The pace of the film is handled with care, but keeps in mind that motion pictures just don't have time like novels do. The story has quite a few twists and turns as the tides change for the protagonist, yet the film still takes the necessary time to get every drop out of the astounding scenery and the smoldering performances of Mia Wasikowska and Michael Fassbender.

"That's What I Am" (PG) -- This coming-of-age dramedy set in mid-'60s America tackles issues of tolerance, determination and principles. The story follows the trials of Andy, a fairly typical 12-year-old boy, as he sets his sights on his first crush. When wise, compassionate eighth-grade teacher, Mr. Simon (Ed Harris) pairs

JEFF BRIDGES

Andy with the class reject -- a lanky, awkward red-haired boy called "Big-G," lessons are learned all around. It's a touching family movie that is nothing short of a full-on surprise from World Wrestling Entertainment Productions. You may recognize a wrestler trying on a dramatic role, and holding it up well enough. But Harris does the real heavy lifting, as he puts even-handed wisdom in a suplex and breaks a chair over the head of adolescent issues.

DOG OF THE WEEK

"Priest" (R) -- In an alternate world where mankind has been at war with vampires since the beginning, the Priests are an elite vampkilling order established by the church. Well, they're not vampires so much as slimy, eyeless, computer-animated reptiles that don't do well in sunlight. For a movie that has no problem playing fast and loose with rules for vampires and priests, it sure doesn't take any chances trying to be original in any other way. The characters, the dialogue, the plotline, and especially the setting are all straight-faced, unapologetic, 100 percent recycled material.

CULT CORNER

"The Big Lebowski" (Limited Edition) [Blu-ray] (1998) -- The definitive set for any devotees of The Dude. The new edition comes with all the bells and whistles, packaged in a 28-page book full of extras, set photography and an exclusive interview. Follow the story of Jeffrey Lebowski (Jeff Bridges), possibly the laziest man in L.A., as he is thrust into an absurd pulp mystery, beset at every turn by the most ridiculous characters and circumstances ever put together by the Coen brothers.

"A Dance With Dragons"
By George R.R. Martin
(Bantam, $35)
Reviewed by Ealish Waddell

One season into a successful TV adaptation and nearly six years after the last installment, the fifth book in George R.R. Martin's sprawling fantasy saga "A Song of Ice and Fire" has finally arrived to transport readers back to the land of Westeros and the never-ending machinations of its game of thrones.

To the glee of fans, favorite characters absent from the previous volume have returned, like sharp, sardonic dwarf Tyrion, now a fugitive from the wrath of his sister, the queen. He, along with many others, has journeyed across the sea to seek out Daenerys, last of the previous royal line, hoping to aid her in her ongoing campaign to win back her family's throne. But even armed with three powerful dragons and a host of warriors, the young rebel queen is having trouble holding on to the lands she's already conquered, as foes emerge from all sides, and even within her ranks.

Back in Westeros, Night's Watch commander Jon

Snow does his best to strengthen the mighty barrier Wall against the foul magic forces that threaten it from the far north. Surprising faces from the past reappear, and everywhere men fight, words betray and allegiances change with the ever-icier winds as the long winter grows ever nearer.

Much of this installment takes place in previously unseen corners of the continent across the sea, whose ancient civilizations differ intriguingly from the medieval European ambience of Westeros, giving Martin a chance to draw his universe ever larger and more complex. The density of the world-building and the intricacy of the interwoven plots have drawn comparisons to Tolkien, but Martin's world is a grittier sort of place, raw and earthy, often brutal and cruel, but with a fierce devotion to its own realism. This may be a fantasy realm, but here good and evil is never black and white.

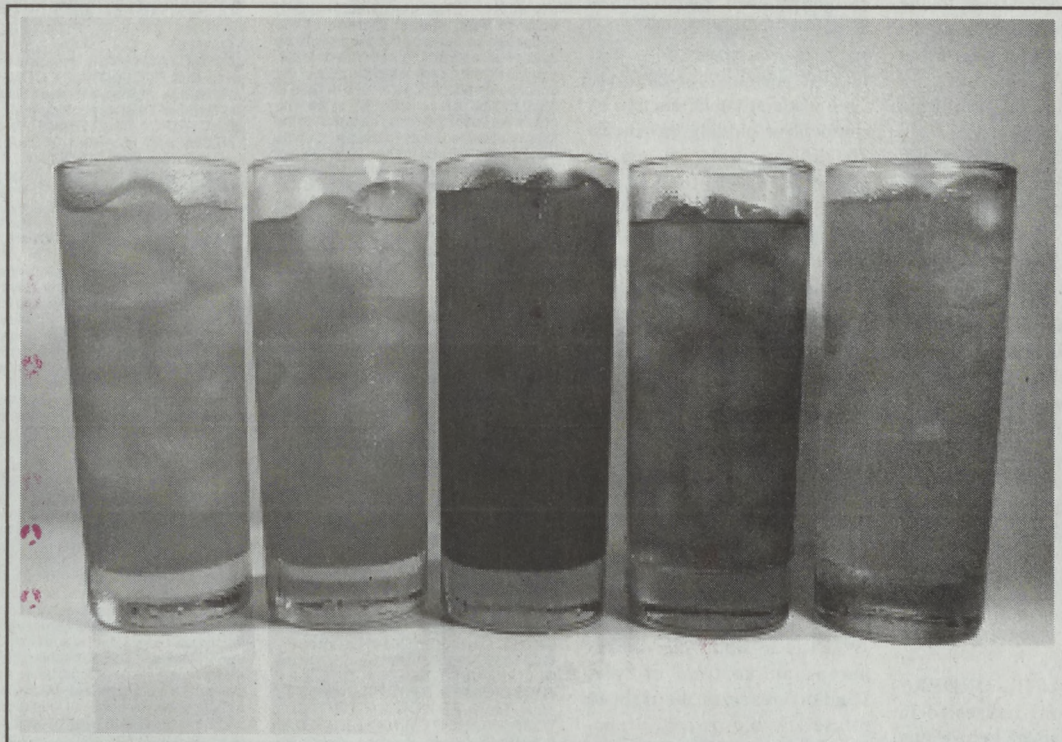

Cool Drinks for Hot Days

©Baby, it's hot outside! The recent heat wave has increased the need to replenish your body and avoid heat exhaustion. Sweating is the body's way of naturally cooling itself. Keep in mind that your body is actually losing fluids as you sweat, so it is important to replace them. Water makes up about 60 percent of your body's weight and is an important part of many body processes. Besides helping to regulate body temperature, water is present in every cell in the body and helps protect some body tissues. Water also helps to transport nutrients and aides with the elimination of bodily waste.

By the time you become thirsty, you may have already lost 2 percent of your body fluids. Mild dehydration is when you have lost 2 percent to 5 percent of your body fluids. Symptoms of mild dehydration include thirst, dry mouth and throat, rapid pulse, low blood pressure, weakness or a lack of energy, and reduced quantity of urine. When there is a fluid loss of more than 5 percent, the body has severe reactions that include pale skin; bluish fingertips and lips; rapid, shallow breathing; weak, irregular pulse; and confusion or disorientation. It can result in shock, seizures, coma and death.

A person who burns about 2,000 calories should get about 8 to 12 cups of fluid per day. (Most women burn less than 2,000 calories, while men working outside would burn more.) That might sound like a lot to drink, but it doesn't all have to come from drinking water. Many of the foods we eat contain a high percentage of water, and that counts as a portion of the 8 to 12 cups of needed fluid. Hydrating foods such as celery, cucumber, lettuce and summer squash are 90 percent to 95 percent water. Grapefruit, strawberries, broccoli and tomato are 90 percent to 94 percent water, and milk, yogurt, egg whites, fruit juices, apples and carrots are 80 percent to 89 percent water. Keep slices of watermelon, honeydew, cantaloupe and other such water-packed fruits in the refrigerator. They are excellent sources of water, sugar and electrolytes, and the perfect "grab and go" refresher on a hot summer's day.

Keep in mind that the thirst mechanism can become weak in senior citizens, so they may need to implement a way of assuring they drink enough water. Some people fill a pitcher with six or so cups of water in the morning and make sure that they drink the entire contents by the time they go to bed. At the other end of the life span are children, who often ignore thirst cues. It is important to assure they are drinking enough fluids, especially if they're playing outdoors. A good gauge of hydration is the color of their urine. A dark-yellow color is an indicator they are not drinking enough fluids.

Just remember that if the weather is hot and you're sweating, that precious fluid needs to be replaced. Next time you venture out into the heat, don't forget to pack a bottle full of this Fruity Sports Drink, or take along a package of the Homemade Powdered Sports Drink to add to your bottle of water!

FRUITY SPORTS DRINK

Using natural fruit juices adds both natural sugars and vitamins to your sports drink. Adding sea salt instead of table salt adds an electrolyte source, as the minerals of the sea are very similar to the electrolyte composition in our blood. Sea salt contains 84 minerals, including sodium, potassium, iodine, magnesium, calcium, zinc, manganese and helps to replenish the minerals you lose through perspiration.

1/2 can (3 ounces) frozen, unsweetened orange juice
2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
1 tablespoon freshly squeezed

lime juice
3/4 teaspoon sea salt
2 quarts water

Using a large pitcher, mix all of the ingredients together until thoroughly combined. Refrigerate and stir to recombine before serving. Makes 2 quarts.

HOMEMADE POWDERED SPORTS DRINK

9 tablespoons organic or raw sugar
3/8 teaspoon sea salt
1 packet unsweetened powdered fruit-drink mix

Mix together the sugar, salt and powdered fruit drink until well-combined. Place 1/3 of the mixture into each of three small resealable bags. To reconstitute, add the contents of 1 bag to a 20-ounce sports bottle. Fill the bottle halfway with water, close and shake to mix. Fill the rest of the bottle with water and shake to mix again.

Alternately, add half the powdered drink to a 20-ounce bottle of water. Replace cap and shake to mix. Add the rest of the powdered drink, replace cap, and shake to mix. Makes 3 servings.
